Purpose

This policy explains how F-Stop Creative approaches copyright, trade marks, client-supplied content and third-party materials. It is intended to sit alongside project proposals, statements of work, client terms and approval forms.

Design-side and strategy-side role

F-Stop Creative provides creative, design, media, website, brand and strategy services. Unless a signed statement of work expressly says otherwise, F-Stop Creative does not provide formal legal, intellectual property clearance, trade mark availability, advertising-regulatory clearance, sector-specific compliance or rights-management advice.

Where a client needs specialist advice, F-Stop Creative may introduce or direct the client to appropriate third-party advisers. Those advisers act independently and are responsible for their own advice and terms.

Client-supplied materials

Clients are responsible for ensuring that they own, license or have permission to use all materials they provide to F-Stop Creative and that those materials may be used for the intended project, territory, media, duration and audience.

- Logos, brand assets and trade marks.
- Photographs, illustrations, video, audio, music and fonts.
- Copy, product claims, testimonials, reviews and case studies.
- Customer data, employee images, names, biographies and personal stories.
- Third-party platform content, screenshots, social media posts, marketplace assets and competitor references.
- Any regulated, technical, medical, financial, legal, environmental, ESG, investment or safety claims.

F-Stop Creative supplied materials

F-Stop Creative will not knowingly include infringing material in deliverables it supplies. Where F-Stop Creative sources stock photography, fonts, music, video, plugins, code, templates or other third-party assets, the use of those assets will be subject to the relevant licence terms.

A client should not assume that every asset can be used without restriction across all media, geographies, time periods, products or campaigns. Usage limits should be checked for each project where relevant.

Approval and sign-off

Clients are responsible for reviewing and approving final copy, artwork, images, claims, layouts, links, specifications and launch content before publication. Approval confirms that, to the client's knowledge, the content is accurate, lawful, authorised and suitable for the intended use.

F-Stop Creative may request written confirmation or sign-off before releasing files, publishing pages, submitting adverts or sending materials to print/production.

What F-Stop Creative is not responsible for unless expressly agreed

- Copyright, trade mark, design right or image-right issues arising from client-supplied materials.
- Legal or regulatory compliance of client claims, sector content, product claims or campaign messages.
- Trade mark searches, company name checks, domain clearance, passing-off analysis or brand availability checks.
- Permissions for people appearing in photographs, video, testimonials, reviews, case studies or user-generated content supplied by the client.
- Compliance of third-party platforms, suppliers, plugins, fonts or media networks except where expressly within the written scope.

Takedown and concerns

If any person believes that content created, hosted or displayed by F-Stop Creative infringes rights, they should contact info@fstopcreative.co.uk with the relevant details. We will review the concern and may remove, pause or amend content while the matter is assessed.
